GUIDELINES:

a. The learners need to prepare the Field Work Journalon the basis of field work ofconducting Case Studies of Five BPL (Below Poverty Line) families living in remote village of rural Assam.

b. The questions in this booklet have to be answered based on information collected through field visit to a community of a category as mentioned above.

c. The learners should interact with group leaders or well-known influential persons of the community/ villagein minimum ten visits. The responses of each person interviewed separately should be integrated and filled up in the spaces provided after each question in this booklet.

d. The main objective of writing this journal is to orient the learners to the crucial activity of Field Work in Social Work Profession. Learners as Social Work Trainees need to be acquainted with the problems of the 'real world' through first-hand experience in collecting information from the field.

e. After every field visit, the learners are required to meet up with their field-work supervisor for Individual conference (IC) based on which they will be evaluated. The supervisors need to sign the journal after every IC.

f. This journal should be submittedOne month priorto BSW- ISemester Examination to the Supervisor.

g. The journal will be jointly evaluated by field-work supervisor and faculty of the university.
